Monday through Friday
8am - 8pm

- Medication-Assisted Treatment (MAT) is the use of buprenorphine, methadone, or naltrexone to treat patients with opioid use disorders. It is the gold standard and reduces risk of death by more than 60%.
- The state-designated MAT Centers of Excellence host this hotline to provide "in the moment" advice for clinicians who have any questions about using MAT.
- The hotline is staffed by a multi-disciplinary medical team.

If my patient is actively using heroin, how do I induct them onto buprenorphine?

How do I transition a patient from methadone to buprenorphine?

Are there any initial side effects from injectable buprenorphine?
