New Jersey Medical School

MY PROFILE

Shakir Saud

From: Brooklyn/Queens, NY

College: The City College of New York

Major: Biology

Racial/Ethnic Description: Black/African American

Personal Interests: I am an avid cyclist; I enjoy traveling to new and exciting places.

Professional Goals/Interests: My goal is to become a physician and then specialize in an area that allows me to explore new biomedical advances and pursue medical application. I aspire to enlarge professional knowledge to benefit vulnerable populations, addressing their concerns and carrying out their directives.

Other: Prior to matriculating into New Jersey Medical School, I spent 3 years at the National Cancer Institute conducting translational research involving the use of bioactive food components for the prevention and treatment of colorectal cancer. Since High School, I have been dedicated to helping underprivileged youth achieve academic success through mentoring and tutoring. Having grown up in an underprivileged community, I passionately believe that with hard work, dedication and education anything is possible.
